Laura van der Meule

@louravandermeuleart

Laura van der Meule, a native of the Netherlands, has lived and worked for many years in Jersey City, New Jersey. She started her art education in the Netherlands at the School for Design and Decor 'NIMETO' in Utrecht and graduated from the Academy of the Visual Arts 'Sint Joost' in Breda, the Netherlands, in 1980.

Laura makes oil pastel drawings on paper and sometimes incorporates acrylic paint or graphite into her work. She finds inspiration in the urban landscape, industrial architecture, and Dutch culture. Her work was in numerous group exhibitions in galleries and museums in the Netherlands and the United States.

Fabricio Suarez photographed in his Jersey City studio by Megan Mal

Fabricio Suarez

@fsuarezart

Fabricio Suarez is an artist from Uruguay working in Jersey City. He received his BFA in Fine Arts and illustration from the School of Visual Arts in New York City.

He has shown in numerous galleries in across NYC and NJ and has done two residencies in Jersey City's Mana Contemporary, and Artists Off-the-Grid in Colorado.

Interested in the mystery and of what nature holds, his current studio practice consists of dark and colorful paintings mostly rooted in the landscape, and born of expressionist brushstrokes. Mainly influenced by Old Masters, he rethinks traditional beauty for spiritual elements of American savagery.

Sandra Cavanagh

@sandra_cavanagh_artista

Sandra Cavanagh was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina. She read Social Sciences at the University of Belgrano, emigrated to California and later to the UK. She is a Fine Art graduate from Kent Institute of Art and Design, University of Kent. Since 2010 she's worked and resided in New York City.

Growing up in Argentina, Cavanagh faced the tensions between a loving family life and constant political upheavals, unrestrained military governments, and the ominous danger of politically sanctioned brutality and censorship. These early experiences deeply impacted her outlook and remain a fundamental influence on her practice.
